Lindsey Ledbetter

Lindsey Ledbetter is a well experienced artist, located in Florida, and is set to graduate with her associates in digital art and multimedia at the end of 2024. As well as being in the honors program for Phi Theta Kappa. Lindsey has grown as a student and has excelled in the adobe suite using photoshop, After effects, premier pro, as well as experience in coding, arduino, photography, and video editing, and currently is a social media influencer. Lindsey plans to use these skills not only to help create more works but also to help expand her perspective and ideas of art.

Lindsey's practice has been influenced through her 5+ years of experience through personal projects, commissions, and in class works, as well as her few exhibitions throughout her time in college, such as her capstone final exhibition project, and other smaller video showcases. Throughout these experiences, they have helped to grow Lindsey into a more confident, stronger artist, who is proud of what she creates.

Much of Lindsey's artworks are inspired by cartoons and anime, and the feelings you perceive from the content. As well as a childlike feeling and colorful emotions these pieces can bring about. She hopes to encapsulate those feelings and emotions throughout her works, and continues to study much of that wonder we all experience when watching these shows. You can experience this through all of Lindsey's colorful works.

Throughout Lindsey's career, she takes passion in her works, and the emotion and feelings we take from it, and will continue to keep studying and working towards understanding the true meaning of childlike wonder, emotions, and how colors can play into it all and how we perceive it.
